三、閱讀測驗

Sometimes it seems that learning a language is a continuous uphill struggle. So it's hard to believe that there is a young boy who could already speak eleven languages at the age of ten! Although the official language in India is English, Arpan's parents could only speak the Indian language Hindi.

Arpan learned Hindi at a young age, and then went on to learn French, Spanish, Italian, and German at school. However, Arpan, whose teachers describe him as a language genius, was not content to just learn European languages as part of his schooling. With the aid of language-learning CD ROMS, he has taken on languages from Asia and even two very difficult languages of Africa.

In addition to his talent for language, Arpan has quite a talent for music as well. In fact, his teachers believe that it is his good ear for music that has helped him with the precise pronunciation of different languages – especially with a tonal language like Mandarin. Although Arpan has language talents, at the moment he has different ideas for his future. He wants to be a surgeon and travel the world helping people.

21. Which best describes the article?

- (A) A discussion of language learning
- (B) A news story of a language genius
- (C) A detailed family history
- (D) An introduction of schooling

22. Which language may Arpan speak most often with his parents at home?

- (A) Spanish
- (B) Hindi
- (C) Mandarin
- (D) French

23. Which is not given as a way that Arpan learned a language?

- (A) From traveling abroad
- (B) From his parents
- (C) From school lessons
- (D) From technology tools

24. How is Arpan's skill at music related to his language learning?

- (A) He has the same teachers for both subjects.
- (B) He uses the rhythm of music to speak.
- (C) His musical ear helps him learn tones.
- (D) He learns music from different countries.

25. According to the passage, what is Arpan going to do next?

- (A) To be a language teacher
- (B) To pick up a musical instrument
- (C) To make a trip to his motherland
- (D) To become a doctor
